

IN THE WOMAN'S WORLD

PRINCIPLE OF PURE FOOD LAWS SHOULD BE EXTENDED

Cleanliness in Household Utilities Needs Force of Legislation

It is a source of everyday wonder that Doctor Wiley did not extend his pure food laws more into matters of public utility around the household.

Lingerie needs protection from the onslaught of ignorant laundresses and laundrymen, almost as much as our stomachs from the commodities manufactured cheaply for human consumption. There are in this city less than a half dozen so-called steam laundries and innumerable Chinese who launder clothing by hand. Which is the more damaging to the materials has not been determined, probably because there is so little difference that a guess is not worth while. The great complaint is against the cleansing powders used in the washing in lieu of soap which is probably more expensive and less damaging to the clothing. In ninety-nine cases out of one hundred a dress made of material having for a design either a stripe or a figure of contrasting shade will not be fit for wear after the first trip to the wash. After the fourth trip all semblance to color, except a pearly white, will have vanished. The mere fact that the materials in women's clothing are expensive seems not to occur to the managers of the laundry, or if it does, is not communicated to the help.

Good, Old-Fashioned Soap Needed.
The extra cost of washing by a steam laundry should warrant the use of good, old-fashioned soap. Washing powders should be left for use on clothing discolored by oil or grease, some that cannot be touched by soap, but women's garments and men's negligees should have better methods of treatment. If housewives and bachelor men would rise in the night invested in them; a change might be wrought, and the change would be appreciated by man and woman alike. If the force of moral suasion avails naught, the law, or something that would persuade the laundrymen to make good for damage inflicted might bring them to their knees.

At the present time the cost of washing is much higher than it was in the old days when the Chinese laundrymen did all of the work and did it far more satisfactorily than the present day workers. Several years ago the family washing was brought home by Sing Lee or John. He was paid the sum of a dollar and a half and went away contented. In those days the housewives complained so when a gown lost a speck of its color that the men were compelled to avoid almost all cleansing powders on colored materials.

PAPER BAG COOKING.
Paper bag cooking seems to have its drawbacks, though it has been so satisfactory on the average that it seems destined to remain in every well-regulated household. While the exceptions to the rule are not numerous, one is reported that should be interesting to those who have not yet tried, but who intend doing so. A gentleman and wife who occasionally dine at the Young learned through Manager Heydenrich of the superiority of paper-bag cooked meats over the conventional style of roasting. Heine took great pains to explain the placing of the lard inside the bag, and then lodging the beef also in the bag and over the lard, and then fastening with the clips which come with the bags. It seemed very easy to the lady, and to the gentleman as well. So easy to the latter, in fact, that he expressed a belief that in the event of the cook leaving at any time or even on a Japanese holiday, it would be the simplest thing in the world for him to prepare the meat and the bag and sit still for results to come. A purchase of a set of bags followed the conversation with Heine, and the next day the cook received his first instructions in the modern style of cooking. He savvied everything; he pointed the spot where the lard should go, like wise the clips, and then the housewife felt that the joint for that night would be a marvel of cookery, for the cut was a good one and the juice would be retained with all of the flavor of the beef. After the usual delays at meal time, the roast was brought on the table by the steward, and as the head of the house cut into it there was a bright beefy red disclosed to his vision; royal odors from the steaming beef were absent and the juice was not there. As it was not "company night," the cook was called into the dining room to tell how the bag was used. Not being clear on the matter, the gentleman and his wife followed the boy to the kitchen, where he illustrated the modus operandi, putting a dab of lard into the bag, fastening the opening with the clips and smoothing out the wrinkles. After this was done he laid the bag in the oven and placed the meat on top of it. The loss of the juice and the flavor was explained, and until another cook comes around this couple will stick to the old style.

BOWEL COMPLAINT IN CHILDREN

Children when teething are liable to attacks of diarrhoea and this trouble, especially in warm weather, should never be neglected. The best medicine in use for ailments of this kind is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. When reduced with water and sweetened, it is not unpleasant, which is of great importance when giving medicine to children. For sale by all dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., agents for Hawaii.

"Yes, but he is no musician. His idea of harmony is permission to do a perpetual solo."

BURROWS SUCCEEDS IN SELF-IMPOSED STRUGGLE

Tom Burrows succeeded in establishing the world's record for endurance club swinging he worked so hard for at the Empire from Wednesday until Saturday of last week. At 11.30 he had swung the clubs continuously for 80 hours, and for two minutes longer he kept it up. He then rested a few minutes, and was taken to his home in a hack.

A. M. Kendall deals in shoes in Colorado City, Colo. His friend Abendshan is a grocer. Both had Bright's Disease. Kendall's hands and legs were swollen with dropsy and at his age (seventy years) he was in bad shape and thought the end was in sight. He received information that resulted in his recovery. Three months later he wrote that he could not get enough to eat and wanted to know how long it was necessary to continue. He told Abendshan, whose doctors had also told him there was no help for him and had advised him to settle up his accounts. Abendshan also recovered. This was in 1908. On December 12, 1911, we wrote Kendall to know how he was getting along. His reply was, "I am all right. Saw Abendshan this morning and he is all right, too."
